
Contents

An interview with Ray Monk, 57

Games with Toy Spaces, 61

Graham Nerlich

Is space something pretending to be nothing or nothing pretending to be something?

Towards A Relocation of the Divine Command Theory, 67

Karl Pfeiffer

Is the moral law 'built in' to the very fabric of human nature?

'Finding our Way About': an experience of philosophy in a primary school, 70

David Cockerell

A report from South Oxfordshire

Physicalism, Reference, and Sense, 75

Anthony O'Hear

Could mental states just be states of the brain?

African Philosophy: appraisal of a recurrent problematic, Part I, The Sources of Traditional African Philosophy, 78

Godfrey Tangwa

Can there be a recognizably philosophical tradition in a pre-literate society?

Philosophy on a Spoon, 84

Geoffrey Scarre

A not-so futuristic story from the Department of Philosophical Pharmacology

Arguments to Design, 93

Anthony Flew

A fresh look at an old family of arguments

A Scientist looks at Philosophy, 96

Len Fisher

A discussion of the different roles of models in scientific and philosophical thinking

Before and After Babel, 99

Adam Czerniawski

On the dream—or nightmare?—of a universal language

Puzzles and posers, 102

Crossword, 103

Book reviews, 104

Philosophy news, 111