
Contents

An Interview with Richard Sorabji, 91

Hume, Miracles, and the Paranormal, 100

William Grey

Hume's argument against belief in miracles can be re-applied to modern claims about the paranormal

Five Varieties of Cognitive Relativism, 106

Howard Sankey

Just what do people mean when they say that 'it's all relative'?

Relativism is Absolutely False, 112

Jamie T. Whyte

An attack on the relativist's notion of truth

Exercises in non-formal logic: specimen analysis of exercise 1 (Ayer), plus exercise 2 (Dawkins), 118

Alec Fisher

Page Three—to ban or not to ban? 122

Anne Thomson

Is there a case for prohibitive legislation?

Pornography, Degradation and Rhetoric, 127

Piers Benn

A critical examination of the claim that pornography degrades women

Dreaming On: Malcolm and the coherence principle, 135

Paul Davis

Can one ever truly judge, 'I must be dreaming'?

A Modern Cogito 3: unpredictability and the other, 140

Christopher Ormell

'My predictions always fail, therefore the other(s) must exist'

Is Aid to Third World Countries a Matter of Justice? 145

Beverley Duckworth

An attempt to extend the notion of a social contract to international relations

Probability and Infinite Sets, 150

Thomas Bittner

Another strange paradox of infinity

Gunddh 2, 153

Mary Haight

The story continues

Book Reviews, 157

Editor's Booknotes, 161

Letter to the Editor, 164

Philosophy News, 164

Puzzles and Posers, 166

Crossword, 167