

ERNEST L. SIMMONS, JR.

1 Mystical Consciousness in a Process Perspective

ERNEST L. SIMMONS, JR. (Ph.D., Claremont Graduate School, 1981), is Assistant Professor of Religion at Concordia College, Moorhead, Minnesota 56560. He did his doctoral work in Claremont, where he was also Assistant Director of the Center for Process Studies during the first four years of its existence. He is concerned with doing theology in a religiously plural world and is currently working on a manuscript dealing with a process theology of the cross.

EUGENE H. PETERS

11 Charles Hartshorne and the Ontological Argument

EUGENE H. PETERS died of leukemia on May 13, 1983, at the age of 54. Since 1962 he had taught philosophy at Hiram College in Ohio. His widow, Damaris, sent us the present article, one of his last writings, which we are pleased to be able to publish in his memory.

WOLFHART PANNENBERG

translated by JOHN C. ROBERTSON, JR. and GÉRARD VALLÉE

21 Atom, Duration, Form: Difficulties with Process Philosophy

WOLFHART PANNENBERG is Professor of Theology and Director of the Institut für Fundamentaltheologie und Ökumene, Universität München, Schellingstr 3/III, D-8000 München 40, and the author of several books, including Jesus—God and Man, The Apostle's Creed, and Faith and Reality (Westminster, 1968, 1972, 1977). Another exchange between Pannenberg and process thought may be found in Encounter 38/4 (Autumn, 1977), 318-24.

GEORGE W. SHIELDS

31 Is the Past Finite? On Craig's Kalām Argument

GEORGE W. SHIELDS received the Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1981 with a dissertation on Hartshorne. He teaches philosophy at Indiana University Southeast, 4201 Grant Line Road, New Albany, Indiana 47150. He has published in The Journal of Religion, Encounter, Dialogue, and the anthology Theology and Technology. His review of David Burrell's Aquinas appeared in PS 11/1.

ALFRED NORTH WHITEHEAD

introduced and edited by ROBERT S. BRUMBAUGH

41 "Discussion Upon Fundamental Principles of Education" (1919)

ROBERT S. BRUMBAUGH is Professor of Philosophy at Yale University, 3650 Yale Station, New Haven, Connecticut 06520. He is the author of several books and essays, particularly on Plato, but including Whitehead, Process Philosophy, and Education (Albany: State University of New York Press, 1982) and "Space as Neither Vacuum nor Plenum" (PS 7:161-72).

NOTES

RICHARD W. FIELD

44 Transmission, Inheritance, and Efficient Causation

RICHARD W. FIELD is a doctoral candidate in philosophy at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, Illinois 62901. He is the author of "William James and the Epochal Theory of Time" (PS 13/4) and of "The Temporal Dimension of Causal Relationships," Dialogue, (October, 1983), 17-26.

DENIS COWAN

46 A Note on Objective Identity and Diversity (PR III.1.7)

DENIS COWAN, former Dean at Shimer College and Professor at Empire State College, SUNY, among other academic appointments, is retired and may be addressed at 701 Ocean Ave. #7, Santa Monica, California 90402. He received his Ph.D. in philosophy of music from The University of Chicago. Two performances of his "Whitehead Motets" were presented at the Center for Process Studies in 1982.

CRITICAL STUDIES AND REVIEWS

ROBERT NEVILLE

49 Uncertain Irony

DAVID L. HALL

58 Imagination and Responsibility: A Philosophical Allusion to Neville's Reconstruction of Thinking

GEORGE ALLAN

68 The Beast not Found in Verse

72 Announcements