

Business Ethics

THE MAGAZINE OF SOCIALLY RESPONSIBLE BUSINESS

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER 1996

VOL. 10, NO. 5

INTERVIEW

31 Jeremy Rifkin

Described as an activist, economist, and philosopher, the prolific author now focuses his boundless energies on the future of the workplace.

OPINION

6 Letters

H. B. Fuller's dirty secret; The Gap's propaganda; Disney and family values.

8 Musings: Marjorie Kelly

Rebels without a clue: Vatec struggles toward democracy.

43 Oxymoron: Gary Selnow

Don't silence the extremists.

NEWS, TRENDS & FEATURES

5 Front Lines

- ▶ Does Hallmark care enough to sell your company the very best?
- ▶ Business school students making a difference — and earning a buck.
- ▶ Mining the environmentally friendly way.

10 Trend Watch

- ▶ Need a mission statement? Talk to a ten-year-old.
- ▶ Peat Marwick's ethics priority comes just in time.
- ▶ Hush-hush corporate philanthropy.

14 Under Pressure

Drug tests, suits and ties, and an obsession to succeed. Has Celestial Seasonings founder Mo Siegel lost his soul?

18 Prison Industries

A lockout for labor?

28 Stakeholder Dialogues

Work and Family. Balance: the new corporate credo. Do you lose your professional edge when you get a life? American and European perspectives.

DOUBLE YIELD

20 A Look at the Laggards

Why socially responsible investing is taking such a beating in the mainstream press.

24 Blue Chip Review

Health care companies. Only the good survive.

26 Marked to Market

Inside investors ensure a company's success.

MANAGEMENT

35 Books:

Reviews of Fat and Mean, Trash to Cash, The Politics of Meaning, and Investor Capitalism.

38 Working Ideas:

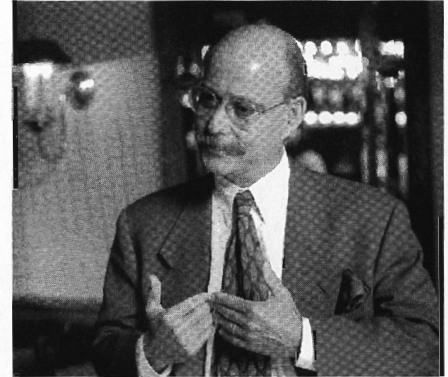

Child-friendly workplaces; EEEE!-mail; Hope for procrastinators.

40 What Would You Do?

When your values oppose your employer's.

44 ESOPs

A first step to employee empowerment.

Jeremy Rifkin

"It's in the long-term interest of everyone to share productivity gains and to ensure they are broadly distributed." P. 31

A business leader in the making?
P. 11

Mo Siegel
Celestial Seasonings founder

The familiar Celestial plot line is being quietly rewritten. P. 14

COVER PHOTOGRAPH BY PAUL CROSBY.