

Call To Earth

Journal of the International
Association for Environmental Philosophy

Vol. 3, No. 2

September 2002

From the Editors:

As you will see, this issue of Call to Earth is dedicated to the publication of the six papers that were given at the last meeting of the International Association for Environmental Philosophy, held in October, 2001, in Baltimore, Maryland. They were given as part of a special seminar entitled "Nature and the Sacred."

These essays offer a rich array of provocative and stimulating questions for environmental philosophy. In some sense the phenomenon of sacred/holy/whole offers a unique possibility to philosophers of the earth, to earth-thinking. One thing is for sure: the sacred as whole ("holistic") manifests the "not two" of humans and "nature" — a first step in beyond-dualistic thinking.

Kenneth Maly
Ingrid Leman Stefanovic

Photograph on the cover is by Brett Clark, Eugene, Oregon.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Bruce V. Foltz	Nature's Other Side: The Demise of Nature and the Phenomenology of Givenness	2
Ed Mooney	Earth as Sacred Site—The Bearing of Defilement: A Case in Point	8
Michael E. Zimmerman	Perception, Incarnation, and Transformation: Sacred Images of Human Corporeality	13
Gail Stenstad	Holy Earth, Whole Thinking	18
Kenneth Maly	Dwelling In the Holy: Dolores LaChapelle On The Sacred	24
Maxine Sheets-Johnson	Origins of the Sacred in the Paleolithic	28
Report on Books		34
Invited Book Review		36