

Contents | Clár Ábhair | 25:2

DAVID GARDINER | 5

Editor's Notes | Nótaí na nEagarthóirí

NOEL MONAHAN | 9

Dreaming at the Moat of Granard

RICHARD BUTLER | 17

Transatlantic Visions of a Technological Modernity: Railway Development and North Atlantic Steam Networks in the West of Ireland, 1825–1838

PHYLLIS BOUMANS | 45

“In the Light of All This Who Then Dares Call Me a Provincial?”: Bryan MacMahon’s Short Stories in The Bell

JOSÉ LANTERS | 60

“Dragging Our Hidden Slums into the Centre of the Footlights”: Homelessness, Addiction, and Audience Discomfort in Sean O’Casey’s Nannie’s Night Out and ANU’s The Lost O’Casey

SIOBHÁN CAMPBELL | 76

New Poetry | Filíocht Nua

GORDON D’ARCY | 89

Glenconkeyne: How Ireland’s Largest Native Woodland Became the Timber Yard of the Plantation of Ulster

BRANDI S. GODDARD | 108

“Our Toil Doth Sweeten Others”: Processional Banners and the Artists’ Campaign to Repeal the Eighth Amendment

CHRISTOPHER CUSACK,
MARGUÉRITE CORPORAAL,
LINDSAY JANSSEN | 129

“In Ireland I’d Have Starved”: North American Fiction about the Great Irish Famine, 1850–1918

MARY O’DOWD | 155

Reviews | Léirmheasanna

ANGELA GRIFFITH | 158

Cover | Clúdach