

■ Table of Contents

| | |
|---|-----|
| How Does It Feel? Affect, Apathy, and Historical Transition | 251 |
| Laura Hengehold | |
| Beyond Continents: Eschatological Dimensions in the Philosophy of William James and Richard Kearney | 263 |
| Paul Symington | |
| Becoming Subjective: Kierkegaard's Existential Revolution | 272 |
| Michael J. Matthis | |
| The Grotesque and Merleau-Ponty on "Fleshing Out" the Subject | 284 |
| Sara Cohen Shabot | |
| Nature Becoming Conscious of Itself: Adorno on Self-Reflection | 296 |
| Deborah Cook | |
| Judgment, History, Memory: Arendt and Benjamin on Connecting Us to Our Past. | 307 |
| Robert Lee-Nichols | |
| Modernity: Vernunftspaltung | 324 |
| Horst Ruthrof | |
| Reason and the Limits of Existential Freedom: Why Sartre is not a Voluntarist. | 338 |
| Stephen Wang | |
| Jean-Jacques Rousseau's "Post-Marxist" Critique of Alienation: A Re-Reading through Jacques Lacan and Slavoj Žižek | 349 |
| Kevin Inston | |
| New Books Received | 368 |