

Contents

FOREWORD BY R. EDWARD FREEMAN, XI

INTRODUCTION, 3

1. What Morality is About, 11

- Reasons for being moral, 11
- The interests of others as reason for action, 13
- Morality and one's best interests: a start, 16
- Relativism, 18
- Interpretation and the limits of morality, 20
- The Ik, 23
- Prospects, 25

2. Utilitarianism and its Difficulties, 34

- Versions of happiness, 35
- Rights and the good life, 39
- Justice and rule utilitarianism, 44
- Moral principles and administrative rules, 47
- Utility and discrimination, 49
- Intimate matters, 51
- The attractions of justice, 55
- Interpreting alien communities, 57
- Prospects, 60

3. Morality and Communities: Collective Action, 68

- Moral communities and social contracts, 69
- The commons problem, 74
- The commons and being better off, 78
- Character and motivation, 80
- Toward the good community, 83
- Prospects, 85

4. Business, Ethics, and Business Ethics, 90

- Against business ethics, 91

The purpose of the organization, 95
 Contractarian views and applied ethics, 97
 Contexts and consequences, 98
 Criticizing communities: relativism again, 100
 The principles of morality, 101
 Against theoretical ethics, 103
 Tacit ideology, 105
 Principles for good organizations: A Rawlsian proposal, 107
 Some modest remarks on justice and rights, 110
 Prospects, 111

5. Morality and Autonomy, 121

Persons, 122
 Pleasure and action: the utilitarian self, 125
 Autonomy, 128
 Choosing one's desires, 134
 Emotion, 135
 Prospects, 137

6. Problems of Corporate Culture, 143

The rational as social, 144
 Two experiments, 146
 The nature of culture, 149
 Culture as a way of managing, 151
 Culture and a theory of motivation, 154
 Japanese culture, 155
 The perils of culture, 157
 Culture and the commons, 157
 Culture, roles, self, 160
 Prospects, 161

7. The Good Community and the Good Organization, 166

Exit, loyalty, and voice, 169
 Exit, 170
 Loyalty, 171
 Voice, 174
 Dealing with many voices, 177
 The good life and the good community, 182

BIBLIOGRAPHY, 189

INDEX, 197