

CONTENTS

SERIES INTRODUCTION

Ioanna Kuçuradi .....IX

VOLUME INTRODUCTION

Venant Cauchy .....XI

SECTION 1: APPROACHES TO CULTURE, RELIGION, SCIENCE AND PHILOSOPHY

Philosophy, Culture, and Pluralism

William Sweet .....3

Le relativisme comme base inadéquate pour penser les relations interculturelles

Marco Jean .....9

Hope and Despair in Postmodernity

Gerald Cipriani .....15

Rethinking Root Metaphors: Re-enchanting a Disenchanted World

Elaine Botha .....21

Intercultural Philosophy

Edward Demenchonok .....27

The Ambiguity of the Term 'Culture' and Its Consequences for the Protection of Human Rights

Nermin Gedik .....33

Verstehen und Verständigung - Ein Grundlagenproblem der Kulturphilosophie

Wolfdietrich Schmied-Kowarzik .....37

What Divides Us Today: Naturalism

Arthur E. Falk .....45

The Philosophy of Nietzsche and Post-Nietzscheanism in the Light of Contemporary Problems

Yunus Tuncel .....51

Wittgenstein and Spengler vis-à-vis Frazer Aydan Turanlı . . . . .	59
Bergson on the Paradox of the Human Condition Demet Kurtoğlu Taşdelen . . . . .	67
Both Citizen and Cosmopolitan: Wittgenstein on the Role of the Philosopher Gertrude D. Conway . . . . .	73
The Rise of Paradigmatic Monism and Its Cultural Implications Mohd Hazim Shah . . . . .	81
Personal Autonomy and Cultural Tradition Monique Deveaux . . . . .	87
Contemporary Politics and Orientalist Thinking in the Light of Merleau-Ponty's Philosophy Anna Petronella Fredlund . . . . .	93
Euro-Centrism and What We Owe the Ancient Greeks Helmut Heit . . . . .	99
Ist die Philosophie selbst ein Weltproblem? Alexander von Pechmann . . . . .	105
Religious Politicization and Fundamentalism –Theoretical and Practical Analysis of a World Problem Anastasia Mitrofanova . . . . .	111
La philosophie des lumières en Turquie en tant qu'un guide illuminant Arslan Kaynardağ . . . . .	117
SECTION 2: COMPARATIVE PHILOSOPHY
The Disadvantages of Radical Alterity for a Comparative Methodology Jen McWeeny . . . . .	125
Comparative Political Philosophy: The Problems of Translation and Power Scott Morrison . . . . .	131

The General and the Particular in Moral Philosophy (The Golden Mean Metaphor) Marietta Stepaniants . . . . .	137
Three Orientation and Four 'Sins' in Comparative Studies Bo Mou . . . . .	141
The Problem of Evil in Classical Chinese Philosophy Franklin Perkins . . . . .	149
Chinese Philosophy through a Prism of Its Classical Ontological Conception in the Future Global Context Marina Čarnogurská . . . . .	157
The Renaissance of Chinese Philosophy. The First Step: Historical Reconstruction Joseph Lieh Liu . . . . .	161
Limitless Changeability? Buddhist Bioethics, Habermas, and the Question of 'Human Nature' Jens Schlieter . . . . .	165
A Contemporary Reflection of a Confucian Theory of the Body: "Natural" or Further Construction? Eva Kit Wah Man . . . . .	173
Philosophy of Indian Logic from a Comparative Perspective John Vattanky . . . . .	179
On the Essence of Substance as the Individual: Aristotle and Tanabe Makoto Ozaki . . . . .	185
Kant and Iqbal: Two Epistemic Views Mohammed Maruf . . . . .	191
Possible Connections between Sufism and Existentialism Kamuran Gödelek . . . . .	201
Towards an Anthropology of Philosophy Kai Kresse . . . . .	207
CONTRIBUTORS . . . . .	223
NAME INDEX . . . . .	235