
Contents

An Interview with Adam Morton, 3

Postmodernism, Postcolonialism and 'the Rushdie Affair', 12

David Bennett

On the paradoxes and perils of postmodernity

The History Corner

Antoine Arnauld, 1612–1694, 25

David Scott

A new look at one of the most important figures in seventeenth-century philosophy

Autonomous Agents or God's Automata?

Human freedom from the divine perspective, 35

Robin Le Poidevin

On What's wrong with one approach to the problem of suffering

Against Art Theory, 41

Matthew Kieran

A plea for the primacy of experience over theory

Properties, 48

Stephen Mumford

Are there properties as well as things? or might things turn out to be bundles of properties?

Humour and Superiority, 54

John Lippitt

is the 'put-down' the essence of humour?

Deviant Epistemologies, 61

William Grey

Do we all tend to perceive more pattern in our experience than is really there?

Depression and Science, 67

David Cockburn & Howard Sankey

Should Hamlet have been treated with anti-depressants?

Gunddh 6, 72

Mary Haight

A few conclusions.

Analysis Exercise 7 and Solutions to Exercises 4, 5 and 6, 77

David Hume, 'Of Miracles', 83

K. T. Maslin

A fresh look at Hume's classic argument

Sense and Sexual Harassment, 89

John Wilson

A reply to Piers Benn

Book Reviews, 92

Books Received During 1994, 97

Editor's Booknotes, 98

Philosophy News, 99

Cogito Society Announcements, 101

Puzzles and Posers, 102

Crossword, 104