

Journal of Islamic Philosophy

Volume 3

2008

www.muslimphilosophy.com/journal/is-03/

Table of Contents

From the Editors

- On Defining the Field: Islamic Philosophy,
Arabic Philosophy, or Muslim Philosophy? 7
MUHAMMAD HOZIEN

Articles

- Mullā Ṣadrā's Divine Occasionalism and
David Hume's Critique of Causality 11
MEHDI AMINRAZAVI
- A Significant Difference Between al-Ghazālī
and Hume on Causation 22
EDWARD OMAR MOAD
- Avicenna, Aquinas, and the Active Intellect 40
KIRK TEMPLETON
- On the Islamic Judicial Logic in al-Ghazālī's
Āsās al-qiyās 68
GERMANA PORCASI

Book Reviews

Catarina Belo, Chance and Determinism in Avicenna and Averroes	112
Franz Rosenthal, Knowledge Triumphant: The Concept of Knowledge in Medieval Islam	118
Gerhard Endress and Abdou Filali-Ansary, Organizing Knowledge: Encyclopaedic Activities in the Pre-Eighteenth Century Islamic World.	121
Ayman Shihadeh, The Teleological Ethics of Fakhr al-Dīn al-Rāzī	124
Oliver Leaman, editor, Biographical Encyclopedia of Islamic Philosophy	127
Hans Daiber, Bibliography of Islamic Philosophy: Supplement	129
Paul L. Heck, The Construction of Knowledge in Islamic Civilization: Qudāma b. Ja'far and his Kitāb al-kharāj wa-sinā'at al-kitāba	131

Contributors

MEHDI AMINRAZAVI is a Professor of Philosophy and Religion at University of Mary Washington in Fredericksburg, Virginia.

EDWARD OMAR MOAD is a postdoctoral fellow in the Department of Philosophy at the National University of Singapore.

KIRK TEMPLETON is in the doctoral program of Asian and Comparative Studies at CIIS.

GERMANA PORCASI holds a PhD in Islamic Philosophy from the University of Palermo.