

Table of Contents

SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY, AND SOCIAL JUSTICE

Volume 22

Table of Contents

Preface.....	v
Introduction.....	1
PART I: SCIENCE
Modernity, Science, and Democracy Sandra Harding	17
Human Rights, Dignity, and the Science of Genetic Engineering Martin Gunderson	43
Two Cheers for Reductionism Matthew R. Silliman	59
PART II: TECHNOLOGY
Global Democratic Transformation and the Internet Carol C. Gould	73
Toward a Critique of Systematically Distorting Communication Technology: Habermas, Baudrillard, and Mass Media Drew Pierce	89
Contemporary Biotechnology and the New “Green Revolution”: Feeding the World with “Frankenfoods”? Johann A. Klaassen	103
PART III: SOCIAL JUSTICE
The End of Liberal Democracy as We Have Known It? William L. McBride	117
The Definition of Torture Joseph Betz	127

The Burden of Securing Social Justice:
Institutions, Individuals, and Moral Action
Jean Harvey..... 137

Autonomy, Pluralism and the Future of the Species:
Agar and Habermas on Liberal Eugenics
Wade Roberts..... 153

Rethinking the Critique of Instrumental Reason
Roger Foster..... 169

PART IV: SELF AND OTHERS

Knowing (with) Others
Gaile Pohlhaus..... 187

A Kantian Conception of Rightful Sexual Relations:
Sex, (Gay) Marriage, and Prostitution
Helga Varden..... 199

Seeking Desire: Reflections on Blackburn’s Lust
Patricia Marino..... 219

PART V: NASSP BOOK AWARD

Why Can’t Democracies Be Universal? How Do Democracies
Resolve Disagreement over Citizenship?
Jeremy Bendik-Keymer..... 233

Comments on The Rights of Others: Aliens, Residents and Citizens
Marilyn Fischer..... 239

Economics, Citizenship, and the Possibility of “Economic Cosmopolitanism”
Johann A. Klaassen..... 243

Democratic Boundaries and Economic Citizenship:
Enhancing the “Rights of Others”
Seyla Benhabib..... 249

Contributors..... 261