

CONTENTS

Volume XXI, Supplement

Spindel Conference: The Rationalist Conception of Consciousness

Editor's Introduction by Hoke Robinson	i
Rationalism	1
Willis Doney
Understanding Interaction: What Descartes Should Have Told Elisabeth	15
Daniel Garber
Response: Mind-Body Interaction in Cartesian Philosophy: A Reply to Garber	33
Roger Ariew
Consciousness and Reflection in Leibniz	39
Mark Kulstad
Response: Mark Kulstad: Leibniz on Consciousness and Reflection: The Early Years and the Late Years	67
Nicholas Jolley
Expression, Perception and Harmony in the Discourse	71
Robert Sleigh
Response: On Perception and Simplicity: Did Leibniz Have Descartes' Simple Substance in Mind?	85
Lesley Cohen
Judgment and Understanding in Descartes' Philosophy	89
Jeffrey Tlumak
Response: Descartes' Theory of Judgment	101
Peter Markie
The Mind, Simple or Composite: Leibniz versus Spinoza	111
Robert McRae	