17 Interview: Paul Hawken

From his houseboat home, the founder of Smith and Hawken talks about his sudden departure from the "world of things," and muses on the state of the earth and his hopes for a "restorative economy."

22 "THEY Did It"

We've become a "nation of victims," finger-pointers and whiners unwilling to take responsibility for our actions. And business is partly to blame.

28 Problem-Solving Partnerships

It's no secret that business is all about the art of problem-solving. Our special advertising section features real-life success stories that demonstrate how consultants and their clients can work together profitably.

Not Business As Usual

14 Tree Huggers Can Collins Pine grow as well as its trees?

15 Less Is More Patagonia puts the brakes on growth and becomes more profitable.

16 Don't Look Back Granite Rock's employee review plan is worth looking forward to.

DEPARTMENTS

6 MUSINGS

Business and the Decline of Kings

The debate about morality in business can best be understood inside the larger story of Western civilization—the story of the decline of the monarchy and the rise of democracy.

8 Trend Watch

Frisby Aeronautics pays the price of peace; the Maharishi opens a hotel; Jeremy Rifkin attacks the Golden Arches; and Borland creates the workplace of the future.

12 People

Doug Decker takes a run at Congress and conservation; John Stewart brings computer literacy to the blind; and Joline Godfrey delivers dreams.

34 Working Ideas

Rhino Foods trains "wants coordinators"; collecting receivables without alienating customers; green ad guidelines.

37 WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Taking Care of Charlie

Before Denise could confront Charlie about his performance, he suffered a stroke.

39 SOCIAL INVESTING

At Home in the Global Market

Global investment opportunities for the social investor: They're not simple, but they can pay off.

46 PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

The Smörgåsbord of Life

By merely accommodating diversity, business is missing the point.
