

Film and Philosophy

Volume IV 1997

Guest Editor: Kevin W. Sweeney

Bread, Companionship, and the Ethics of Attentive Response: Marcel Pagnol's The Baker's Wife	3
by Raymond D. Boisvert and Jayne R. Boisvert
The Lodger's Allegory of Seeing	11
by Christopher D. Morris
Some Truths About Pulp Fiction	20
by Fred Seddon
A Phenomenology of Television Experience	27
by Allan Casebier
Aristotle and Egoism in Ground Hog Day	38
by Joseph Kupfer
Speech, Community, and Evil in Rob Roy	47
by Joseph Kupfer
Happiness Through Insanity: The Function of Outrageousness in Screwball Comedy	58
by Jeffery L. Geller and Richard Vela
King Vidor's Communitarian Vision in Our Daily Bread	66
by Brian O'Leary
The Ontology of Perception in Cinema	74
by Jack Simmons
Deluze on Beckett's Film	85
by Kevin W. Sweeney
Tourists with Typewriters: Jew and Writer in Barton Fink	95
by David Goldblatt
Machine Dreams	112
by Harvey Roy Greenberg

This year's cover is by Kevin W. Sweeney and David H. Traugett.