

Midwest Studies in Philosophy

Volume XV

The Philosophy of the Human Sciences

Walking Together:
A Paradigmatic Social Phenomenon	Margaret Gilbert 1
Rationality and Alien Cultures	Lawrence H. Simon 15
Ratifiability and the Logic of Decision	Brian Skyrms 44
The Idea of Science	Hilary Putnam 57
Paradoxes of Rationality	Cristina Bicchieri 65
How Do I Presuppose Thee? Let Me Count the Ways:
The Relation of Regularities to Rules
in Social Science	David Braybrooke 80
Causes of Variability: Disentangling Nature and Nurture . .	Arthur Fine 94
Probabilism	Richard Foley 114
Singular Explanation and the Social Sciences	David-Hillel Ruben 130
Moral Realism and Social Science	Alexander Rosenberg 150
The Methodological and Metaphysical Peculiarities of the Human Sciences	Joseph Margolis 167
“Human Sciences” or “Humanities”:
The Case of Literature	Frederick A. Olafson 183
Social Science and the Mental	Alan J. Nelson 194
Narrative Time:
The Inherently Perspectival Structure
of the Human World	Robert Paul Wolff 210
Newcomblike Problems	Jordan Howard Sobel 224
Soft Laws	Terence Horgan and John Tienson 256
Do Social Structures Govern Action?	Theodore R. Schatzki 280
Group Action and Act Consequentialism	Richard Fumerton 296
Some Social Benefits of Uncertainty	Gregory S. Kavka 311
Foucault’s Genealogical Method	Gary Gutting 327
The Contractarian Explanation of the State	Jean Hampton 344
The Deductive Method	Daniel M. Hausman 372
Vigotsky and Artificial Intelligence:
What Could Cognitive Psychology Possibly Be About? . .	Rom Harré 389
The Disappearance of Tradition in Weber	Stephen P. Turner and Regis A. Factor 400
Social Norms and Narrow Content	Meredith Williams 425