

■ Table of Contents

Editors' Introduction	3
Walter A. Brogan and Margaret A. Simons
Tradition, Phenomenological Description, and Aesthetic Analysis
Visibility and History: Giorgio Agamben and the Exemplary	9
Steven D. De Caroli
Phenomenological Literature: From the Natural Attitude to "Recognition"	18
Jennifer Anna Gosetti
Husserl's Phenomenologization of Hume: Reflections on Husserl's Method of Epoché	28
Stefanie Rocknak
Tradition, Crisis, and the Work of Art in Benjamin and Heidegger	37
Pierre Lamarche
The Role of Aesthetics in the Politics of Hannah Arendt	46
Karin Fry
Irigaray on Heidegger: Nature, Technology, and Gender
The Ethics of Air: Technology and the Question of Sexual Difference	53
Stacy Keltner
The Horror of Language: Irigaray and Heidegger	66
Maria Cimitile
The Enigma of the Natural in Luce Irigaray	75
Ann Murphy
Abjection, Liberation, and Justice
Object Images: Kristeva, Art, and Third Cinema	83
Tina Chanter
Frantz Fanon's Phenomenology of Black Mind: Sources, Critique, Dialectic	99
Lou Turner

Justice and Action in Otherwise than Being	105
Adam Wilkins

Bodies and Difference

Merleau-Ponty And Bergson: Bodies of Expression and Temporalities in the Flesh	110
Alia Al-Saji
“For Love is as Strong as Death”: Taking Another Look at Levinas on Love	124
Claire Elise Katz
“With Arms Wide Open”: Of Hospitality and the Most Intimate Stranger	133
Nancy Holland

Community, Politics, and Practical Philosophy

Why Heidegger’s Hermeneutics is not a “Diahermeneutics”	138
Francisco J. Gonzales
Nietzschean Agonism and the Subject of Radical Democracy	153
Alan D. Schrift
Hegel and Nietzsche: Recognition and Master/Slave	164
Robert Williams
Equality and Democratic Societies.	180
James Swindal	