

CONTENTS

Introduction		vii
Contributors		xi
Acknowledgments		xv
Part I. Theory of Phenomenological Description
1. Descriptive Phenomenology	Maurice Natanson	2
2. The Theory of Phenomenological Description	Robert Sokolowski	14
3. Pregnant Subjectivity and the Limits of Existential Phenomenology	Iris M. Young	25
Part II. Phenomena of Time
4. Keeping the Past in Mind	Edward S. Casey	36
5. From Another Past	David Wood	57
6. Distance, Absence, and Nostalgia	James Phillips	64
7. Nostalgia: Experiencing the Elusive	E. B. Daniels	76
8. The Sources of Experienced Temporal Features	Peter K. McInerney	91
Part III. Phenomenology and the Artful
9. Toward a Phenomenological Aesthetics of Environment	Arnold Berleant	112

10. The Ethical Function of Architecture	Karsten Harries	129
11. The Subject in Sartre and Elsewhere	Peter Caws	141
12. Method of Madness in The Family Idiot	William Leon McBride	152

Part IV. Phenomenology and the Sciences

13. Natural and Artificial Intelligence	Elmar Holenstein	162
14. "The Whole Business of Seeing": Nature, World, and Paradigm in Kuhn's Account of Science	Leonore Langsdorf Harry P. Reeder	175
15. Science and the Theoretical "Discovery" of the Present- at-Hand	Joseph Rouse	200
16. Phenomenology and Economic Science	Kenneth W. Stickers	211

Part V. Phenomenology and the Social

17. Hannah Arendt's Critical Appropriation of Heidegger's Thought as Political Philosophy	Mildred Bakan	224
18. Husserl on Reason and Justification in Ethics	Gary E. Overvold	248

Part VI. Continental Philosophies in the University

19. The Liberal Tradition and the Structure of Phenomenology	Edward Goodwin Ballard	258
20. Habermas on the University: Bildung in the Age of Technology	A. Anthony Smith	274
21. Epistemology and Academic Freedom	David L. Thompson	286

Index		297
-------	--	-----