

Table of Contents

Preface	9
Chapter I. Uniqueness and Hesitation on the Journey of Thought	21
1. The Venture of Essential Thinking	22
2. Hesitation on the Pathway of Thought	26
3. Contention with Metaphysics	33
4. Rethinking Truth.	40
5. Preparation for Essential Thinking	42
6. Thinking Be-ing as Unique	44
7. The Language, Uniqueness, and Task of Beiträge	47
8. The Idea of Be-ing-historical Thinking	58
9. The Task of this Study	61
Chapter II. Rethinking Thinking	70
1. Transitional Thinking	72
2. The Ambition of Essential Thinking	81
3. The Sense of Wonder in Questioning	96
4. Attunements, Historical Dimension, and Task of Thinking	111
5. The Inceptional, Daring Thinker	149
Chapter III. Essential Thinking as the Rethinking of Being	155
1. Essential Thinking and Grounding-Attunement	156
2. Ways and Habits of Thinking	165
3. Inceptional Thinking.	185
4. Reserve in Thinking.	200
5. Reserve and Care.	211
Chapter IV. The Uniqueness of Philosophical Thinking	218
1. The Contrast between Philosophy and Worldview.	220
2. The Critique of Worldview	230

3. The Primordially of Philosophy	233
4. Philosophy as “Philosophy of a People”	238
5. Philosophy as Defined by Heidegger	246
6. Philosophy as the Genuine Power of Thinking	261
7. Philosophy and the Question “Who are We?”	267
Chapter V. Inceptional Thinking	281
1. The Idea of Beginning (Inception).	283
2. Definition of Inceptional Thinking	285
3. The Nature and Origin of Inceptional Thinking, and the Two Beginnings	298
4. The Range and Task of Inceptional Thinking.	309
5. Misleading Demands on and Obstacles to Inceptional Thinking.	327
6. Inceptional Thinking as Historical.	333
7. Surmising Fissure in Be-ing	340
8. Inceptional Knowing.	341
9. The Style of Inceptional Thinking	351
Chapter VI. Surmising Be-ing as Enowning	353
1. The Significance of Enowning	354
2. Enowning and the Question of Being	357
3. The Leap to Enowning	363
4. Thinking Be-ing as Enowning	380
5. The Radicality of Thinking Be-ing.	406
Chapter VII. The Thinking of Be-ing and Language	412
1. The Language of Be-ing.	415
2. The Experience with Language	425
3. The Word Coming from Silence	433
4. Saying the Unsayable.	439
Epilogue	455
Bibliography	459