Established in 1991, BEQ is the leading scholarly journal in its field. It is a peer-reviewed scholarly journal that publishes new scholarly studies on topics relevant to the ethics of business, CSR, and sustainability. This includes:

- Theoretical work including analytical, conceptual, and normative articles;
- Qualitative (e.g., interview, participant-observer, ethnographic, case-based) work that makes an original theoretical contribution;
- Quantitative (e.g., experimental, field, measure development) work that makes an original theoretical contribution; or
- Historical work that makes an original theoretical contribution.

Members of the Society for Business Ethics receive BEQ as a benefit of membership. Institutions may subscribe or access BEQ through EBSCO Business Source. Back issues are included in JSTOR.

The Society for Business Ethics

www.societyforbusinessethics.org

The Society for Business Ethics is a non-profit association of scholars and professionals who share a genuine interest in business ethics. Since 1980 it has provided an organized forum for those interested in research, teaching, or the practical application of ethical principles and concepts to the management of businesses. The Society conducts an annual meeting for the presentation and discussion of new research, issues a quarterly newsletter with current information for members, and produces the scholarly journal Business Ethics Quarterly. Members receive a subscription to BEQ and online access to a selection of business ethics resources.
